Last October he married Miss Jessie Field,

ENTERPRISE.

A great work of grace has been in progress at Enterprise for the past four weeks. The Methodist church has been crowded each night with an anxious interested audience to participate in singing the gospel and listening to the old time truths. Over fifty have bowed at the altar as seekers and the church has been greatly awakened revived and equipped for service. The meetings have been conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. S.
McMullen assisted by his people, to God be all the praise.

The following resolution was unanimously passed at the last Official Board of Centreville Circuit. "We the members of the Centreville Quarterly Official Board wish to hereby express our hearty appreciation of the work done in our circuit by our beloved pastor, the Rev. J. S. McMullen. We find that every line of our church work throughout the entire circuit is on the advance. We have much pleasure therefore in requesting our brother to remain with us for another year at a salary of six hundred and fifty dollars.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL.

To be beautiful we must have pure blood and a clear skin. BUNDOCK BLOOD PURIFIER cleans the blood and makes the skin bright and clear.
It cures all skin and blood diseases. Witness the following: "I had scrofula on my face for some time, and could get no relief until I tried
B.B.B. One bottle healed me and left no scars.
It is the greatest blood purifier in existence."
MARY C. BERRY, Toronto, Ont.

PICTON.

The weather changes furnishes something new to speak of every day.

On Saturday Feb. 12th while in Pictou, Mr. Albert Zimmermann, of Crespy, was seized with hemorrhage of the lungs. He made out to reach the office of Dr. Karn who succeeded in stopping the flow of blood.
The patient was so weak that the doctor had him taken to a room in his house and carefully looked after as he said that a second attack was sure to follow, and on Monday morning about three o'clock a.m.
when the doctor was away in the country
attending a patient the bleeding began again and before medical aid could be procured the young man died.

The adjourned inquest mentioned in last week's issue opened promptly on Friday last 10 a.m. After all the witnesses had been sworn the jury retired to their room
but soon returned with the verdict that Mr.
Henry H. Haight met his death from furious driving by Harrison and Kellar.
These two men had to furnish $1,000 bail
and are next to appear before Police Magistrate Geo. Currie.

An enjoyable time was spent last Tuesday at a family gathering in the home of Mr. Wm. Robbins, of South Bay, to celebrate the seventy fifth birth day of his mother Mrs. M. Robbins who is enjoying good health. Her great grandson, son of Mr. Donald Haight, of Wellington, was present.

There was a very large market on Saturday potatoes sold for 60cts per bag, chickens 60 to 75cts per pair, turkeys 90cts per lb.
apples $1.20 per bus, butter from 18cts to 20cts, eggs 14 to 26cts per dozen etc.

Business has been quiet with the merchants and is likely to continue so until after the approaching election.

The cost of remodelling the first Methodist church is estimated at about $12,000.

greatest value to any one desirous of secur-

extended visit.

surrounding country occupied the home of

All report a good time.

Mrs. T. B. Chamberlain visited her sister Mrs. Thompson, of Selby, last week.

Mr. Pringle, who has been on the sick list all winter, is able to be around again.

NEWBURGH.

Mr. Editor, I have not seen any item in your paper from our little hamlet so I will send a few.

The storm of the past few days has made the travelling somewhat scarce.

Mr. C. H. Finkle has secured a new woodworker.

Plenty of wood is being hauled through here on the c.s.

The grand concert of the N.H.S. held Friday last was a grand success. The debate was something of excellent character.
Resolved that agricultural life tends more to virtue and nobleness than commercial or professional life. For the affirmative appeared, H. Lochhead, W. Shorey, S.
Moore; negative, P. Quinn, L. Longmore, J. Kelly; Mr. H. Lochhead opened the debate in his usual good natured style closing with but a few points looking out-for the return speech. Mr. Quinn for negative, although a farmer's boy, he called them almost everything, thus showing he never intends to stay on the farm. W.
Shorey opened his speech like Lord Chatham
if time permit he may occupy such a position. Next on negative side came L.
Longmore. This young man shows from the very start that he will some day become a public speaker. He had a few notes from which he spoke thus showing he is trying to make his way in life. I myself Mr. Editor would appreciate this more if all the scholars henceforth would try this young man's plan. Miss Moore stepped to the platform with an air of "Mrs.
Charles Crowley" showing she had been there before. The paper rendered by this young lady was excellent. Miss Jennie Kelly rendered her paper in excellent style showing that there was thought on the subject. Mr. Quinn then replied for the negative. Followed by Mr.
Lochhead who upset all the former's points
by saying no matter whether hay-seeds or not they are the men of the country. Miss Edna Hinch gave an instrumental solo.
Miss Edith Beaman an instrumental solo.
A speech by the Secretary of School Board,
Mr. Glenn, sounded like old times. Miss S.
Moore presided at the piano and sang
the National Anthem.

Mrs. Sarah Dunlop and son Frank arrived on Saturday on the 5 p.m. train from South
Manchester county on a visit to her sister Mrs. John Shorts. Since starting their health has improved greatly. They speak in high terms of Canada in its prosperity. They are much delighted with our winter, the like of which is unknown to them in the South.

Last Friday being literary in the Methodist church, I proceeded over to take in the style of the programme. When I arrived they had drifted off in a new line. Taking Grey as the evening programme, which was beneficial to every one. Essays were

MONSTER LIBERAL RALLY,

EXCELLENT ADDRESSES
BY D. W. ALLISON, GEO.
H. BERTRAM AND THE CANDIDATE.

The monster Liberal rally in the opera house here on Wednesday afternoon in the interest of Bowen E. Aylsworth, the coming member for Lennox, was a happy augury of success. There were fully 500 people present and the utmost harmony and enthusiasm prevailed. Quite a number of ladies graced the occasion with their presence. A large number were present from the surrounding district and a more successful meeting could not be wished for.

Mr. Thos. Symington, president of the Lennox Reform Association, acted as chairman in a very acceptable manner. In his introductory remarks the chairman was particularly happy, and his reference to D. W. Allison, Esq., Ex-M.P., as the "Old Liberal War Horse of Lennox" elicited rounds of applause.

D. W. Allison, on coming forward to address the audience, was given a warm reception. He said that he was introduced under a new title to-day—that of an old war horse. The three essentials of a good war horse were strength, speed and endurance. He did not possess the strength of former years, or the speed, nor yet the endurance, but one thing he was certain of, he had all the grit he ever had. (applause.) Mr. Allison then turned his attention to the parrot cry of the opposition, "it is time for a change," and showed how fallacious it was when applied to the Hardy Government. He applied the cry to an old and well tried captain of a steamer plying on one of our great lakes. This captain had managed his ship wisely and well, he knew all the hidden shoals and dangerous reefs, he was conversant with the internal economy of the boat. Would it be wise to discharge this old servant and hand the ship over into the keeping of an untried man, simply because the old captain had been a long time in your service. He referred to the neighboring town of Deseronto, which stood as a tribute to the good management of the Rathbun Co. F. W. Rathbun, as the head of that company, had established large manufacturing in-ally, he didn't care about some trifling mistakes. The Government were not infallible. When men become infallible they should be translated to another sphere.

Mr. Bertram then turned his attention to the Boundary Awards Case. Owing to the present government we have a province that extends from the fresh waters of Lake Ontario to the salt waters of Hudson Bay. In that district, which was secured for Ontario by the vigilance of the Liberal Government we have valuable mineral lands, great timber limits, and the time was coming when those lands will be found to be of enormous value. Away back 150 miles removed from population lie thousands of acres of good agricultural land, equal to any in the province. In that disputed territory is to be found millions of feet of timber land where the woodman's axe has never been heard. They were all conversant with the fight Sir Oliver Mowat and Mr. Hardy made to secure those lands to Ontario. When the Government of Sir John Macdonald was endeavoring to rob this province of this valuable heritage the Liberals fought him from court to court until the question was finally settled in Ontario's favor by the Privy Council. The Opposition favored the handing over of these lands to the Dominion. Look at what the Ontario Government secured for the people in retaining that enormous arena for Ontario. From that district they had already received over a million and a half of dollars of revenue. Last year alone the revenue from these lands had amounted to $200,000. These two facts alone should insure the return of the government. (1) The spotless character of the men. (2) The Government had added largely to the area of the province and given us a revenue that will last for many years to come.

Mr. Bertram dealt with the time for a change cry in an effective manner. It was time for a change last year at Ottawa because the Government was corrupt and so discredited that they could not carry on the affairs of the crown. The Hardy Government, however, is working in harmony in the best interest of the province and the people were not going to run the risk of making a change. It was simply a parrot cry with nothing at the back of it. The Conservatives were boasting that Whitney would sweep the province. They all remember the cry! "Mowat must go," but he didn't go till he got ready. The Conservatives cannot sweep Ontario, because the people won't let them. This reminded him of a story told by Dr. Dewar. An Irish Fenian was boasting how he had perfected plans for smashing old England. The Fenian said: We have 20,000 men in the north, 20,000 men in the south, 20,000 in the East and 20,000 in the west. We are going to get those men together and hurl them at England and dismember her. A friend asked him why in thunder he didn't get his men together then and commence operations. The Fenian replied sadly, "The police won't let us." The people of Ontario won't let Whitney get his men together. In Mr. Meredith the Conservatives had an able leader, who never went to the people without a policy of some kind. He was backed by all the influence of the Dominion Government but he could not win. Was it reasonable that Whitney, who is a much weaker man, without a policy or influence can succeed where Meredith failed.

Mr. Bertram dealt briefly with the educational system and the question of a

CENTERVILLE.

The present weather is a reminder that winter has not left us yet.

The interest in the coming election does not appear to be so great as in former years. Neither of the candidates have held any meetings in this township yet, although it is probable they will this present week. Mr. Reid's majority in Camden will not be so great as it formerly was and a great many feel confident that it will be turned into a minority.

Mr. J. R. Perry, of Barrie Township, was here on business the last of the week, and states that the Liberals back there were never more united or better organized than they are for the coming campaign.

Our schools have been poorly attended of late owing to the prevalence of measles. The Croydon and Newburgh stage is now able to make weekly trips.

E. H. Perry has returned from the back country.

Bernard Ingoldsby is visiting friends on Amherst Island.

Miss Burdette spent Sunday with friends in Newburgh.

To the Electors of Lennox

GENTLEMEN.

Having been chosen by the Liberal Party of Lennox as their candidate at the next election, I wish publicly to thank the party for the confidence reposed in me in tendering me the nomination. Since the meeting of the convention at which I was so chosen I have visited many parts of the riding and have met with most encouraging support, both from Liberals and old time Conservatives.

I have been asked to outline my policy, and in brief I may say that I shall ever be my policy to study the needs of the people of this Province in general and of this riding in particular, and to use my best endeavors to advance what I believe to be the best interests of my constituents. I unhesitatingly announce my faith in the general policy of Mr. Hardy and his colleagues, because I believe it has been, and is, their aim to conduct the affairs of the Province in an honest and business-like manner. The very fact that the Opposition has failed to point out a single instance of corruption during a period of twenty-five years is conclusive evidence to my mind of the purity of the administration. While I am a believer in the ability, honesty and integrity of the present Government, I reserve to myself the right to criticize that Government in all matters where I feel it is to the public interest to do so. I most emphatically repudiate any intention upon my part to blindly follow any man or any set of men.

I have also been asked my views upon the question of granting bonuses to the manufacturers of iron. I am not in sympathy with this policy, because I do not believe it to be the best interests of the majority of the people of this province, and if elected I will use my influence against the present bonus system.

Between now and the day of the election I hope to have an opportunity of discussing the public questions of the day with all of the electors of Lennox, and to carefully weigh any suggestions relating to the public good, as my sole aim, if elected, will be to honestly represent the people of Lennox in all matters coming before the House.

Thanking you for the generous support accorded me in the past, which I shall confidently rely upon in the future, I remain,

Your obedient servant.

B. E. AYLSWORTH

A CODE OF SIGNALS.

Nature has a code of signals—a language—step and tired, weary feeling are in the code. They show that the system is run down and dragged out. Nature's medicine for this is Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills—they benefit the entire system, brace the nerves, and brighten the brain, curing nervousness, sleeplessness, and palpitation of the heart, etc.

industries in that town, he had branches of business in other places and it was due to his efficient management that the concern had been so successful. Suppose we were to say that Mr. Rathbun had managed this business too long, that it was time for a change, and we placed Mr. Whitney and Dr. Meacham at the head of the concern would you look upon it as a good change. The Province of Ontario is an immense business concern far exceeding the Rathbun Co. in importance. Its resources are great and the details of the business are intricate and difficult to master. If Whitney and Dr. Meacham are not capable of running the Rathbun concern, could you trust them to run the affairs of this province. Mr. Whitney never held a portfolio in any government. There is not a man in his party who has held a portfolio in the Ontario Legislature. The Conservatives have had no experience in Ontario affairs. Mr. Whitney and his right bower, Col. Mathieson,—he called him Col. Mathematician—had proclaimed to the people in their tour just prior to the last session of the legislature that the government would have a deficit of $600,000 last year. When the House met they found that the government had a surplus of $5,000,000. In view of this he thought that the average school boy was better able to judge of these things than Mr. Whitney and Col. Mathematician. Mr. Allison here told a humorous story of the old U. E. L. days and passed on to the timber question. He said that he had had some experience in the timber business and knew what he was talking about. Mr. Whitney and Dr. Meacham aver that our timber limits are used up and the province is on the verge of direct taxation. How do they know this? An experienced man could not inspect more than 100 square miles of timber limits in a year. We had 100,000 square miles of standing timber limits and consequently it would be necessary for Mr. Whitney and Dr. Meacham to spend 100 years in the woods to find this out. Personally they know nothing about it. Mr. Allison quoted from a pamphlet issued by the Dominion Government under the approval of Her Majesty's Minister for the colonies, showing that there is sufficient timber limits in Ontario to last for centuries to come.

Bowen E. Aylsworth made a brief and telling speech. He said that he was in hearty sympathy with the policy of the Hardy Government. He believed the government had managed the affairs of the province for the past 26 years economically and well. He dwelt on the dishonest manner in which Dr. Meacham made comparisons. The John Sandfield Macdonald Government was in power four years. The doctor lumped the expenditure of the Macdonald Government for four years and divided it by four and gives the result as the average expenditure of the government. As a matter of fact the expenditure of the John Sandfield Government during the last year of its administration was more than double that of the previous years. Mr. Aylsworth detailed the way the government had assisted agriculture and gave a brief summary of some of the beneficial legislation passed by the government. He showed up the piggery cry of the Opposition in the true light. He showed that Dr. Meacham had opposed the New County Council Act which was a move in the direction of economy. This act had saved this county last year $700.

Mr. Symington, in introducing Mr. Bertram, referred to the deep interest taken in the election by the ladies. He also paid a high tribute to the Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture.

Geo. H. Bertram, M.P., the talented member for Centre Toronto, was the next speaker, and on rising to address the audience was greeted with an ovation. Mr. Bertram is a large ship builder and is looked upon as a shrewd level headed business man. His forcible and able speech fully sustained his reputation as one of the best speakers in the Dominion Parliament. After voicing the pleasure it afforded him to be present to speak in the interest of a farmer, for he had been brought up on a farm himself, he turned to Ontario affairs. There were no great issues at stake in this campaign. The Opposition dealt in trivial, picaresque details while the government appealed for support on their past record. The Reformers had been in power in Ontario over 25 years, and during that period not one single spot or stain can be found on the character or standing of one member of the government. They could not find a parallel case in the history of any Government in the world. He thought this, "not above everything else" overtopped everything else. He didn't care about little matters about piggeries, and school books. So long as he was satisfied that the Government was honest, and managing the larger issues of the province satisfactorily.

surplus. Of our educational system, it was sufficient to say that it had won the gold medal at the World's Fair at Chicago. Of the surplus, the opposition were using the self same arguments that they had used in the discussions of 22 years ago. He showed conclusively that the government had a surplus of over $5,000,000, and referred them to the joint discussion (a report of which could be found in the Globe) between Mr. Rowell and Mr. Marter on this subject. The Conservative champion had been made to bite the dust after all his vain boasting and cries of "snare me a man." Marter, the Goliath met his David. In reference to this question he did not think it was good statesmanship to hoard up a surplus. He thought the Conservative party should give John Sandfield Macdonald a rest. John Sandfield was a Reformer and a hard-headed penurious Scotchman. Whatever virtues he possessed, the Conservatives are not entitled to any credit of it. They have no right to say if they were in power they would follow in his footsteps. Their record in the past gave the lie to any such claim. The Sandfield Macdonald surplus had been well spent. The government had returned it to the municipalities to whom it belonged and had paid out many millions besides to relieve the tax-payers of the Province. This they had done, too, without taxing the people a single cent.

Mr. Bertram handled the timber question in an effective manner, and gave the Government high praise for the able manner in which they had disposed of this troublesome question. He referred how the able men of the opposition were retiring from the field as there was nothing in it for them. Dr. Ryerson and Mr. Howland had deserted Mr. Whitney. In the ranks of the opposition there were not enough qualified men to form a good cabinet. These men couldn't get above the level of small, petty things. The calf with the cough and the hog with the cholera were their only stock in trade. He had heard St. John discussing the piggery. The man worked like a windmill and he gave you the impression that the whole future of Canada, yes, and the British Empire was wrapped up in this great Piggery issue.

Mr. Bertram referred to what Mr. Whitney is pleased to term the Englede deal, and believed as a business man that it was one of the best things the Government could have done. He also referred briefly to the succession duties and instanced the legislation passed by the Government for the amelioration of the toilers of the land. In closing his excellent address Mr. Bertram urged upon the good men of the County of Lennox to rally round the farmer candidate.

THE SLOAN MEDICINE CO.

Dear Sirs—For years I was troubled with periodical sick headaches, being affected usually every Sunday, and used all the remedies that were advertised as cures, and was treated by almost every doctor in Guelph but without any relief. One doctor told me it was caused by a weak stomach, another said it was hereditary and incurable. I was induced by a neighbor to try Sloan's Indian Tonic, and am happy to say I did so. A few doses gave immediate relief, and one bottle and a half made a complete cure.

This was three years ago and the headaches have never returned. I was also troubled with asthma and nothing helped me like your Sloan's Indian Tonic. I can heartily recommend it to all and will be glad to give any particulars to any one afflicted as I was.

SEVEN cents per head is the cost of legislation in Ontario. In Quebec it is thirteen cents.

The system of re-forestry which the Hardy Government has inaugurated will make the timber of the province last forever.

AFTER twenty-six years of Liberal rule in Ontario the Opposition cannot point to one corrupt act on the part of the Government.

An Opposition without a policy appealing to an intelligent electorate to turn out an honest, capable and well-tried Government because it has been in power twenty-six years is unique in the history of any country.

Corby's I. X. L. is playing a prominent part in the campaign in the Hastings. A gentleman who has just returned from a trip in that county avers that he saw more drunken men in Hastings in three days than he had seen in Lennox in one year.

BEFORE Honore Robitard would consent to become the Conservative candidate in Russell he had to be promised a cabinet position in the Ontario ministry in the event of the Whitney party being successful at the polls. It was Sir Charles Tupper that made the promise.

The Liberals of the local Reform Association at Stella have appointed Mr. R. A. Caughey as their president. The choice, we understand, was unanimous, and a wise one. Mr. Caughey is a promising young man of more than ordinary ability, and promises well to be a public speaker of considerable merit. He holds the distinction of being a successful leader of young men, and we believe he will fill the position with credit to himself and satisfaction to the electors, as well as to Mr. Aylesworth, the Liberal candidate for this county. He has an able lieutenant to assist him in the person of Ex-Reeve Alex. McKee, who was elected vice-president.

Our contemporary, The Beaver, excelled itself last week and this week we are confident it will out "St. John," "St. John." The salaries paid to the officials of the Ontario Government commanded its attention and it gave out that last year the officials of the Ontario Government were paid $1,731,290. To show the utter absurdity of this statement it is only necessary to point out that the total expenditure of the Province last year was $3,703,379.73. This included the grants to education, maintenance of public institutions, hospital and charities and agricultural grants. These alone with payments to counties to aid the administration of Justice amounted to about $2,500,000. The Beaver toys with millions as a boy plays with marbles.

WHEN the Conservatives held their memorable meeting in the Mail building, Toronto, last year the burden of their song was, "Capture the Provinces and the Dominion is ours." Sir Chas. Tupper was elected president of the association and James Piny Whitney, vice-president. The great Tupper detailed the plan of Ontario's capture and the boys shouted right out to "meetin'." "It is good to be here." Tupper has been directing Mr. Whitney's campaign, and the Hon. Geo. Foster has been addressing meetings and writing boomerang articles for Whitney in the Ottawa Citizen. Henry Corby, M. P., of Belleville, whose name is writ large on whiskey bottles throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, is wielding all his well-known and peculiar in-

Weak and Low Spirited—Nervous Prostration—Appetite Poor and Could Not Rest.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to others. It has been the means of restoring my wife to good health. She was stricken down with an attack of nervous prostration. She suffered with headaches and her nerves were under severe strain. She became very low spirited and so weak she could only do a little work without resting. Her appetite was poor, and being so weak she could not get the proper rest at night. She decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, as we had heard it highly praised, and I am glad to state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has perfectly cured all her ailments." G. ## A RETROGRADE MOVEMENT.

Dr. Meacham tried to make a little cheap capital for himself at his meeting here on the 14th inst. He said he had urged upon the Government the authorizing of a primary geography, and waxed eloquent over the relief this would afford the poor man. The solicitude of the politician for the welfare of the poor man on the eve of a general election is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. If the poor man will go back 15 years, to the year 1883 when the present Minister of Education, took charge, he will find that we had in the public schools at that time nine different text books in geography, eleven in grammar, four in arithmetic, five in history and three series of text books in reading. In each of these subjects there is but one text book now in use. One of the great reforms of Mr. Ross' administration was the doing away with the multiplicity of text books. In Dr. Ryerson's time we had fifty-five text books in the public schools, now there are only eleven. As has been pointed out the policy of the department is to authorize but one text book in each subject, so that pupils in changing from one locality to another, may not be required to purchase new books. Dr. Meacham's educational policy is a reactionary one. He would take us back to the days when we had nine text books in in geography, and fifty-five in all.

COMPARISONS ARE ODIUS.

Take the Pansy and Elsie series of books, which retail at 35c. each, and compare them with the public school Second Reader, which retails at 35c, and you will be convinced that the latter book is better bound and better printed.

Take "The Hermits," by C. Kingsley, which comprises 325 pages and retails for $1, and compare it with the public school fourth reader, which contains 350 pages and retails at 40 cents and you will find that the binding is identical and that the Fourth Reader is much better printed than "The Hermits."

The Third Reader sells for 35 cents and you will find on examination that it will compare more than favorably in workmanship with the novels which retail for 60 cents.

The first and second part readers which retail for 10 and 15 cents respectively are infinitely superior in binding and printing to the 15 and 20 cent paper covered novels which are to be found on the shelves of every bookseller.

The Napanee Express

NAPANEE, FRIDAY, FEB 25th 1898.

JIM REID and his colonization roads'
resolution should be laid on the shelf.
Both have outlived their usefulness.

ONTARIO has a system of public buildings inferior to none in America, not one cent of the cost of which was raised by direct taxation. They were paid for out of current revenue.—Ex-

If you want Government without taxation vote for Hardy.

It is easier to vote out a good government than to replace it.

It is now within a few days of polling day and Mr. Whitney has not announced his policy.

It will redound to the advantage of Lennox & Addington if supporters of the Government are returned on March 1st.

UNDER Liberal rule it costs much less to govern the Province of Ontario than the city of Toronto, costs its taxpayers.

WE believe that Mr. Whitney is the only member of the Ontario Legislature who is a director in an American lumber company.

BOWEN E. AYLSWORTH's municipal experience warrants us in saying that he will make a more useful member than Dr. Meacham.

THE Ontario Government has managed the affairs of this banner Province for twenty years without taking one cent from the people.

MR. STRATTON, M.P.P., of Peterboro, says that Dr. Meacham lobbied for the James Bay Railroad. Mr. Meacham is endeavoring to convey the impression that he opposed the grant to this road.

THE Ontario Government does not ask the people to contribute one dollar toward the care of the insane. The municipalities of the Province of Quebec are forced to bear half the cost of the care of the insane, and in Nova Scotia the Government only pays one-fifth of the cost.

RESULTS of the Government's timber policy: The province receives a revenue of nearly a million dollars a year, a park of a million acres has been reserved for public use, a system
of fire-rangings has been established, and, finally, all timber cut down in the future must be manufactured within the province.—Toronto Star.

ONTARIO has an auditor in the person of C. H. Sproule and he must be a more wide awake, careful and painstaking officer than the Auditor-General at Ottawa, for the very reason that the Opposition after twenty-six years of prying and spying have never succeeded in finding a figure out of place.
Mr. Sproule's duties are similar to that of the Dominion Auditor-General.

THE Toronto Telegram, an Independent Conservative paper says: "Gentlemen who are urging Ontario to vote out the Hardy Government because the defeat of the Grits would have a good effect on the Conservative party, might stop and think that Ontario usually votes in accordance with its desire to produce a good effect on its own fortunes."

Who is this man Whitney, anyway?
We are told that he is a lawyer, but can anyone tell of an important brief that he has held? In Sir Oliver Mowat and Hon. Arthur Hardy we have men who are in the front rank in their profession and in the cases in which the interests of the Province and the Dominion clashed, thanks to their presentation of the case, Ontario has always been awarded the decision by the Supreme Court and the Privy Council.

to line. Corby doesn't disguise his reasons. "Carry Ontario and it will aid us in regaining the Dominion," says the head bottler of I. X. L. The boys are working hard for a return of the good old days when timber limits were parcelled out at $5 a square mile.

IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE.

Lennox & Addington have been sending opponents of the government to Toronto for the past ten years.

Beyond drawing their sessional indemnity they have accomplished nothing.

Aylsworth and Wartman are able men who will have the ear of the Government.

Reid and Meacham have had a good innings and as they have not demonstrated their fitness for the positions
they have held, why, let us have a change.

WHO DOES THE WORK?

The following statement gives the number of bills introduced during the recent Legislature by the members of the Ontario government and by the leading members of the Opposition respectively:

Year	By Ministers	By leading mem- bers of Opposition.

1865	42	2
1866	56	4
1867	51	1

MEACHAM'S EQUIVOCAL COURSE.

Mr. Whitney says that his policy is the direct opposite to that of the Hardy Government. Dr. Meacham is sailing in the same boat. Now that Mr.
Aylsworth has announced that he is opposed to the bonus system Dr.
Meacham's mouth-piece, The Beaver,
comes out with a long article in favor of bonusing and lauds the doctor to the skies for his attitude on this question. Mr. Aylsworth is held up to execration for his independent stand on the bonus question, and everybody is urged to support Dr. Meacham because he is in favor of bonusing ign.
Sometime ago a gentleman in town wrote to Dr. Meacham requesting him to state his position in reference to the "iron bonuses." Under date of Nov.
24th, 1897, the doctor replied as follows:

On the bonus question there is no need of any secrecy on my part and I thought I spoke plainly on the subject at the skating rink at our evening meeting when I declared my opposition to the Bonus System, excepting of course those for colonization purposes and I also called the attention of the meeting to the gratuity system which has cost the province some $284,000 since '76. The iron smelting bonus, as I understand it cannot be repealed for two years—
and then I think both parties will drop it—
at least I will not vote for its renewal.
Believe me my dear sir.

Yours truly,

W. W. MEACHAM.

Dr. Meacham's stand on the bonus question at present is an equivocal
one. While his organ announces that Mr. Meacham is a hard-and-fast supporter of "iron bonuses," the doctor occupies an elevated position on the fence and gracefully endeavors to balance himself so as to please both parties. Dr. Meacham should either repudiate his organ, or follow the example of his leader, Sir Charles Tupper, and acknowledge that he made a mistake at the skating rink meeting as he was not then aware of the independent stand Mr. Aylsworth would take on this question.

Purifies the blood and restores the

ONTARIO'S LABOR LAWS.

As in agriculture the Liberal Government of Ontario has recognized the greatest industry of this country and,
—by the establishment of the Department of Agriculture with a responsible Minister at its head in the person of Hon. John Dryden, a thorough, practical farmer possessing superior administrative ability,—has been able to wisely and economically assist those who are engaged in the various branches of farming, so its record as to labor legislation is regarded by competent authorities as the most advanced, and progressive of any self-governed country in the world.

That well-known Conservative, Mr.
E. F. Clarke, M. P., and for years one of the most prominent of the Opposition members in the Provincial Legislature, speaking on this subject at Dundurn Park, Hamilton, last Labor Day, said:

"In looking up the history of the Province for twenty-five years, the people might well congratulate themselves on the strides that had been made. It was less than twenty-five years since Parliament declared labor organizations to be legal.

Before 1872 it was an illegal thing
to be a member of such organizations, but no man need now apologize for standing on the platform on behalf of organized labor. The objects of organization were peaceful and progressive and he was bound to give full credit to the Attorney General, Hon. A. S.
Hardy, and Hon. J. M. Gibson, for the efforts they had made during many years on its behalf. They have also been willing to accede to any reasonable demand of organized labor.
As the combined effort of organized labor there had been placed upon the Statute books a body of legislation that is a credit to those who have enacted it and to those who have demanded it."

Spanish Peasants' Trick.

In one respect the Spanish peasants are ahead of the rest of the world—they have learned to make cocks hatch eggs and look after the chickens, while the hen, being at liberty, can and does lay more eggs than she would if hampered by her maternal duties. The trick is performed in this way: They carefully pluck the feathers off
the rooster's underside, and the bare skin is then irritated with nettles until inflammation sets in. The cock soon finds that the pain caused by this cruel process is mitigated by warmth and softness, and this makes him willing and eager, although for purely selfish reasons, to hatch
a brood and let the little chicks sit under him.—San Francisco Argonaut.

AWFUL HEART DISEASE.

Death Charmed away Under the Spell
of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart—
More Wonderful Than a Fairy Tale. is the Story of Mrs. Roadhouse, of Willsboro, Ont.

Where disease has affected the heart the remedy to be applied must be speedy in its effects, or all may be lost. Mrs. Roadhouse, of Willsboro, Ont. says: "Cold sweat would stand out in great beads upon my face, because of the intense suffering from heart disease. I often felt that the death struggle was at hand. No medicine gave me help until I used Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. In thirty minutes the severe pain was removed, and after taking little more than one bottle the trouble had vanished. I know nothing of it to-day."

DON'T CHIDE THE CHILDREN.

Don't scold the little ones if the bed is wet in the morning.

It isn't the child's fault. Weak kidneys need strengthening—that's all. You can't afford to risk delay. Neglect may entail a lifetime of suffering.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Strengthen the Kidneys and Bladder, then all trouble ceases.

Mr. John Carson, employed at M. S. Bradt & Co.'s store, Hamilton, Ont., says:

"My little boy seven years of age has been troubled with his kidneys since birth and could not hold his water. We spent hundreds of dollars doctoring and tried many different remedies, but they were of no avail. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured him."

SALARIES OF PUBLIC SERVANTS

Much ado is being made by the Opposition about alleged over payment of the public servants of the Province. A comparison between Ontario and other countries shows how unfair is such criticism.

Cabinet Ministers: Victoria, $10,000; Sth. Australia, 15,000 West Australia, $5,000; Massachusetts, $5,000; Ontario, $4,000. Deputy Ministers: Victoria, $4,500; Sth. Australia, $3,000; West Australia, $3,000; Massachusetts, $2,500; Ontario, $2,300 to $2,800.

THE ISLAND OF APPLE TREES.

It lies among the outer seas,
O'er many a mile of water wan,
And seldom any living man
Across the clamorous waves has past
And found ere he for death was cast,
Avilion, isle of apple trees.

Atlantis was its name of old,
And many a drowning mariner
'Twixt life and death has sighted her
Gold apples growing on the verge.
Then, as he sank in stifling surge,
Cursed her and all her fruit of gold.

And now upon the boughs one sees
No golden fruit, but only red,
Sweet apples moving overhead
In a soft wind that speaks of May.
And still one sees and snails away
From that dim isle of apple trees.

BEES LIKED HIS ODOR.

How a Farmer Unwillingly Bought a New Pair of Shoes For a Tramp.

As I sat on the veranda with the farmer after supper I asked him if he was not greatly bothered with tramps, and his reply was:

"Waal, a good many of 'em come along and want a bite to eat, and some of 'em are pretty snaky, but only one man of 'em ever showed me a real mean trick."

"Polsen, your dog?" I queried.
"It was meaner than that. We was eatin dinner one day in the spring when a hive of bees started to swarm. I'd bin expectin it and watchin 'em and had a new hive ready. When bees swarm, they will light on most anything handy—a limb, a bush or even the pump. Jest as the bees began to pour out of the hive and circle around along comes a tramp up the path to ask for somethin to eat. The queen bee settled down on his old hat, and the hull swarm filtered her. In two minits that tramp's head and shoulders was covered with bees, and I yelled to him for heaven's sake not to try to fight 'em off or he'd be stung to death."

"He must have been terror stricken," I said.

"Not a bit of it, sir. He was as cool as a cucumber, and when I told him he'd hev to stand in a smudge till the bees was killed off he jest laughed. When they'd all settled down on him and I was goin to start a smudge, he sez:

"'Old man, what d'ye consider this swarm of bees wuth in cold cash?'"

"'About $5,' sez I."

"'Are ye willin to give $3?' sez he."

"'What fur?' sez I."

"'Bekase ye'll either pay me $3 or I'll walk off with the bizness and sell out to somebody else!'"

"'And you had to buy him off?' I asked."

"'That's where the meanness comes in,' replied the farmer. 'Them bees was my property, and I wasn't buyin what was my own. He offered to take $2, but I couldn't see how he could git away with 'em and refused to come down. Then he False Representations.

An Ontario Lady Compels a Merchant to Pay for Damages.

A lady writing from an Ontario town says: "A month ago I visited one of our town stores and asked for three packages of Diamond Dye Navy Blue for dyeing all wool goods. The merchant informed me that he was out of Navy Blue in the Diamond Dyes, and talked me into buying a dye of another make, at the same time guaranteeing them to do as good work as I could get from the Diamond. A lady friend was with me at the time and heard the whole conversation. I took the strange dye home, used them according to directions, and was sadly disappointed with the results. The color was anything but a Navy; in truth, my materials were spoiled. I at once took the goods to the merchant and told him his dyes were frauds. He offered to give me more of the same dyes or my money back. I refused both offers, and after I had threatened law proceedings he thought it best to pay for the materials spoiled. This merchant will never again have the chance to sell me any more dyes. I shall go where I can get the Diamond Dyes at any time they are wanted. I have had my last lesson with poor dyes."

The Buck Saw.

"The buck saw in any mind," said the middle-aged man, "is indelibly associated with a saw buck—the reach between the two X's half sawed through, where it had been scored by the saw dropping down upon it—standing by a wood pile in the back yard. There are chips scattered around on the ground and scraps of bark and more or less sawdust.

"What brings all this to my mind is the sight of a man sawing wood with a buck saw on the deck of a schooner lying at a South street wharf, a stick of cord wood resting in the saw buck, and the man with his knee on it and sawing away just as he would ashore. At first this looked strange, and so it does still to some extent. I had seen saw bucks and buck saws on the decks of canalboats, where they looked natural enough, because the canalboat is usually close by the land, where one could step to or from it easily, but I could scarcely make the buck saw seem familiar on a salt water craft, because it seemed to me so essentially a thing of the land.

"Finally I did make it seem all right on the schooner, though, by thinking of that as a vessel making short voyages and keeping near land and hauling up maybe in creeks close by the shore and as being in various ways intimately associated with the land, but I couldn't think of it as being used at sea. But when I came to think it over I knew, of course, they must have some way of sawing wood aboard deep water ships, and when I came to inquire I learned that the buck saw is used afloat just as it is ashore; it is piled on a ship a thousand miles at sea just as it would be on a farm."

Rich and Poor.

It is said that John Jacob Astor once replied to an inquisitive man who asked him how much money he had, "Just enough, sir, so that I can eat one dinner a day!"

How much wealth would a man need to enable him to eat two? If we are sometimes tempted to envy the very wealthy, let us reflect that in all essential particulars we are quite as well off as they. The colors that dye the sky at sunset or paint the leaves of the forest in autumn are no lovelier to them than to us; sleep is as sweet and restful and activity as joyous to us as to them. Miss Parr Says: "After the First Dose I Felt New Hope and New Life Coming."

Nervous Prostration, Mental Depression, and Excruciating Sufferings Are Banished.

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND THE GREAT LIFE BUILDER AND VITALIZER.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,

DEAR SIRS:—For several years I have had weak nerves, and was gradually running down, and last March I was prostrated with nervous debility. My sufferings were excruciating in the extreme. I really thought there never was another who suffered quite so much with mental depression and weak nerves. This lasted about three months, and I was taking doctor's medicine continually, but was getting worse instead of better.

One day, while feeling quite discouraged and wondering if I was ever to get out of my dreadful state, a dear friend said to me, "I wish you would try Paine's Celery Compound." As I had intended to try it I acted upon her advice and started using it the very same day, and from the first dose I felt new hope and new life coming. I continued using it, and am still taking it once in a while, always asking God's blessing on each bottle. I am very much improved, and cannot say too much in favor of the medicine, and would recommend it to all suffering from nervous prostration and mental depression.

Yours faithfully,

The Better Way.

There are some men who believe that honesty in everyday business matters is incompatible with success. They think that in order to get along they must practice a certain degree of trickery and deception. They argue that the up and down honest man who will not swerve from the path of rectitude is sure to fail in whatever he undertakes, and hence they justify themselves in practicing petty as well as wholesale fraud and in taking advantage of the veridancy of customers under the plea that custom and necessity compel them to adopt this course. The man who possesses the requisite business qualifications can succeed better by pursuing an honest, straightforward course than if he were to deaden his conscience and disregard all moral obligations. We frequently hear the expression made in reference to some good natured, inactive man, "Oh, he's too honest to get along!" Now, this is a false inference, for in nine cases out of ten the honest man's failure does not arise from the practice of an upright course, but from his unfitness for the business in which he is engaged.

We do not by any means intend to convey the impression that honesty will cause a man who is not qualified for the business in which he engages to succeed. What we mean to assert and the impression that we would leave on the minds of the readers of The Ledger is that a man who is adapted to a certain pursuit will and must necessarily succeed better by dealing honestly and uprightly than by cheating and defrauding.

But in addition to the matter of success, how cheerful and pleasant is the condition of the man who knows and feels that he is doing an honest business—a business which his conscience approves!—New York Ledger.

Ice More Slippery Than Glass.

Ice has the property—peculiar to bodies which expand on freezing—of liquefying under pressure and solidifying again when the pressure has been removed. Consequently the weight of any body moving upon a sheet of ice causes the formation of a thin layer of water, which separates it from the ice, and thus, by reducing the friction to a minimum, enables it to move smoothly over the surface—i. e., makes the ice more "slippery." On glass, on the contrary, this liquid medium is wanting, so that the two solid and unyielding bodies come into actual physical contact, causing a friction which, in spite of the smoothness of the glass, considerably retards the motion of the body. If two smooth sheets of glass be taken and a few drops of water sprinkled over the one and the other placed above it, a thin layer of water will be formed, and until this layer has been pressed out the upper glass will move on the other as smoothly as if on ice. This peculiar property of ice is due to the effect of pressure in lowering the freezing point of water, so that whenever ice is subjected to great pressure it partially melts.—Exchange.

Stories of Henry George.

The activity and power of intellect of the late Henry George did not prevent absentmindedness. A writer in The Review of Reviews says that this quality was "the jest of his circle."

Names escaped him. I heard him say to Mr. Dayton, the candidate on his ticket for comptroller and one of the best known men in New York:

"You won't mind it, I hope, if I forget your name. I am so conscious of the danger of getting names wrong that when the need of remembering comes it rattles me, and away the name goes."

He came late to a dinner at the Lotus club, where he was to discuss with some friends the question of his being a candidate in apprehended contingencies. It was raining, and he took from his pocket the slippers with which Mrs. George had insisted on providing him in case he should get his feet wet, and as he put them on he apologized with honest gravity:

"I lost time looking for a man I kept asking after as Kinsella, and at last turned out his right name was Mr. Kinsella. At least I think that was his priority. At it was when I found out that he told me it was there was no Jim."

But there was no absentmindedness when discussing the business in hand ensued; he was as keen and wide awake.

REV. W. A. DUNNETT.

From the Smith's Falls Record.

Throughout Canada, from the western boundary of Ontario to the Atlantic Ocean, there is no name more widely known in temperance and evangelistic work than that of the Rev. W. A. Dunnett. Mr. Dunnett has been the Grand Vice-Councillor of Ontario and Quebec in the Royal Templars, and so popular is he among the members of the order that in Montreal there is a Royal Templars council named "Dunnett Council" in his honor. For more than ten years Mr. Dunnett has been going from place to place pursuing his good work, sometimes assisting resident ministers, sometimes conducting a series of gospel temperance meetings independently, but always laboring for the good of his fellows. While in Smith's Falls a few months ago in connection with his work he dropped into the Record office for a little visit with the editor. During the conversation the Record ventured to remark that his duties entailed an enormous amount

N.H., five doctors had arrived and were in attendance before he regained consciousness. In all these cities and towns the newspapers freely mentioned his affliction at the time. Mr. Dunnett said he had consulted many physicians though he said, to be entirely fair, he had never been any great length of time under treatment by any one doctor because of his itinerant mode of life. In the early part of the summer of 1896, while in Brockville assisting the pastor of the Wall street Methodist church in evangelistic services, he was speaking of his trouble to a friend who urged him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and next day presented him with a dozen boxes. "I took the pills," said Mr. Dunnett, "and I declare to you I am a well man to-day. I used to worry a great deal over the pain about my heart, but that is all done now, and I feel like a new man." All this the reverend gentleman told in a simple conversational way, and when it was suggested that

Too serious a condition to neglect.

A Guelph harness maker tells how he was cured.

Mr. Wm. Dyson, the well known saddler and harness maker of Guelph, Ont., makes the following statement: "I heartily recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to anyone suffering from nervousness and heart trouble. They are a splendid medicine for such complaints. For a long time I was afflicted with nervousness and pain in my heart, which was especially severe at night, often destroying my rest. These pills cured me and invigorated my nervous system which is now strong and healthy. They restored restful sleep besides removing the distressing heart pains which formerly gave me so much anxiety and trouble."

presently, Mrs. Fontenoy pointed from the window and said:—
"Yonder is Live Oaks."

Irma saw a stately old house of mellow brick with gray stone facings. Three or four magnificent live oaks stood guard about it, and a wide drive led up to the gate.

Lights flashed from the windows, and there was a sound of gay voices and room, but it is pretty and cool, and had a fine view of the river."

As they passed the parlor on their way upstairs, a young, handsome man turned and caught a glimpse of Irma. "It is Madcap's new music-teacher, I suppose," he said to the stately, Juno-shaped blonde who was crouching at his side. "She has a very singular face. I fancy it would be beautiful in certain lights."

"I hope she has some flesh," returned Belle, calmly knitting on. "If she hasn't, Maddalon will wear her into a whipping-post as she did Miss Midgens."

"Nonsense! Miss Midgens' own temper wore her into skin and bone. Miss Midgens was an acid old maid, and this girl is—"

"This girl is better flitting material, eh, Cousin Bert?" said Miss Gray, wheeling round on the piano stool.

Dr. John's face clouded a little. He had been telling his fiancée of a case of pathetic distress brought under his eyes by his profession. He thought she was interested in it, and she had not been listening. But he was used to Fannie's moods.

CHAPTER IV.

"I hope you will feel at home, Aimee," Mrs. Fontenoy said, smiling kindly, as she closed the door.

Irma was left alone. She sunk on a chair in the midst of the pretty room, with its pale-tinted walls, strewn with mountain plunks, matched by the carpet and toilet-set.

For a minute she sat there, her face buried in her hands. She was dazed at the sudden change in her life—in her identity. Her ideas upon moral matters were vague. She did not realize the wrong of the deception she had entered upon as another more strictly brought up might have done. But her instinct of honor made it give her a twinge of pain, while the love of excitement inherent in her was stirred by the novel sensation of being other than herself.

She lifted her head. "No longer Irma, dear, henceforth I am Aimee Brazeale," she said.

The dressing-case mirror was before her. She saw her face, her flushed cheeks, her shining eyes. Hair and eyes were dark like Aimee Brazeale's, but the expression was wholly different. There was more strength for good or evil—more of the latent fire of passion in this face.

Suddenly a face appeared behind her in the mirror. She started, and turned slowly round, with white lips and dilated eyes. It was only the maid, who had brought her tea.

"Did I scare you?" she said. "I knocked and you didn't answer, and I of last year. To this Mr. Dunnett assented, but added that in his present physical condition he was equal to any amount of hard work. But it was not always so, he said, and then he gave the writer the following little personal history, with permission to make it public. He said that for the past thirteen years he had been greatly troubled with a pain in the region of his heart, from which he was unable to get any relief. At times it was a dull, heavy pain, at others sharp and severe. Oftentimes it rendered him unfit for his engagements, and at all times it made it difficult to move. His trouble was always visible to the public, and frequently when conducting service he would give out and doctors had to be called in to attend him. This occurred to him in the Young street church, Toronto; the Baptist church, Woodstock, N.B.; the Methodist church, Carleton Place, Ont. On another occasion while preaching to an audience of 2,500 people in the Franklin Street Congregational church, at Manchester

he let it be known, he rather demurred, because, as he put it, "I am almost afraid to say I am cured, and yet there is no man enjoying better health to-day than I do." At that time, at Mr. Dunnett's request, his statement was only published locally, but now writing under the date of Jan. 21st, from Fitchburg, Mass., where he has been conducting a very successful series of evangelistic meetings, he says:—"I had hitherto been writing in regard to my health, not because I had forgotten, but because it seemed too good to be true that the old time pain had gone. I cannot say whether it will ever return, but I can certainly say it has not troubled me for months, and I am in better health than I have been for years. I have gained in flesh, hence in weight. I would prefer not to say anything about my appetite; like the poor, it is ever with me. Yes; I attribute my good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and you have my consent to use the fact."

CHAPTER III.

The Monsoon got on her way a little after midnight. But she made slow progress. She encountered another sand bar and had another tiresome stoppage. She did not reach Hlysdan until the sun was setting. Irma and her luggage, her valise and Almee's little trunk—were put on the wharf, while the deck-hands were taking in wood. She stood looking drearily after the receding boat, hardly hearing the importunities of two colored hotel drummers, who were repeatedly informing her that the house each represented was "the only first-class hotel in de city. Everybody tell you so."

They were ready to fight over her valise, when she turned and put herself in charge of one of them. In a few minutes she was seated in a pretty little room of the River House. A servant brought a pencil and a piece of paper, saying:—

"Your name, please, miss, for the clerk to register."

But before the name could be written there was an announcement:—

"A lady to see you, miss."

"A lady to see me?"

"Yes, miss, it is Mrs. Colonel Fontenoy. She asked if Miss Almee Brazzale had come, and the clerk told her yes; he had seen your name on your tag. Here's she now."

"May I come in?" asked a musical voice. A sweet, delicate, sorrowful face peered in, and then a little figure in black tripped into the room and ran up to Irma and kissed her warmly.

"I am so glad to see you, my dear."

she said. "We looked for you yesterday morning; the Monsoon was due then. But the river is so low, and the weather is so hot—Isn't it? But you will find Live Oaks a cool place—a boundless contiguity of shade," as the poet says. My dear, you are not at all like your mother. You have your father's eyes and brow; yes, and his mouth too. Your mother was blonde and petite, with such a sea-shell color! We called her Pinkle at school. Oh, how pale you are looking! You must be tired to death travelling on that miserable little boat; crowded, too, I dare say. We will take you home at once and let you have a good rest. I will order the boy to take your trunk to the carriage, and we will drive right home. Maudie is crazy to see her new niece."

But the friend, she had talked without stopping or giving Irma a chance to explain that she was not the expected Almee, the schoolmate's daughter ready to be welcomed with open arms at Live Oaks. Oh! if she only were Almee! Why could she not be? What was to prevent her being Almee? Who would know? Who would undeceive these people? And where would be the harm? She could fill the post that Almee was to have had. She knew music and French. She knew very little of anything else; but she was well instructed in these. Her mother had been educated by French nuns, and spoke French with the ease of a native. They had conversed in it together ever since Irma could remember. And music, her mother's passion, her consolation—she had taught it to Irma almost from her cradle.

"Yes, I can take Almee's place," was the thought that went swiftly through the girl's mind. "They would not give it to me if they knew that I was a stranger, with no recommendation, no friends. They would inquire into my life; they would turn from me if they knew. And it was not my fault—oh, it was not my fault. How kind and pleasant Mrs. Fontenoy was! How good it must be to live with people who are kind and refined. Oh! must I tell her?"

Before she had decided Mrs. Fontenoy had returned.

"Now, my dear Almee, we will go," she said; "your trunk and valise are in the carriage. There are your veil and gloves, dear, don't leave them. A nice supper and some good tea and a sound sleep in a comfortable bed will put some roses in these cheeks."

She tucked Irma's hand under her arm, and led her down to the carriage that was in waiting.

As in a dream, Irma was whirled through the streets—out past the heart of the town to the suburban villas that lay around it—pretty, ornate cottages set in handsome grounds—until music.

"Have you a party?" Irma asked.

"No, it is only our home crowd. I think. My step-son, Doctor John Fontenoy, is here. He lives nearer town in his pretty bachelor home. His betrothed, Miss Fannie Gray, came yesterday. She has been at Saratoga this summer. She is a cousin of Colonel Fontenoy, and quite an heiress, by the way. That is she singing, and John is standing at the piano by her. You can see them through the window. Can you see Bertrand, my son, a little further back? He is talking to Belle, my step-daughter, who is called the finest looking woman in the state. John is the best fellow living, but he isn't as handsome as Bert. Ah! here comes your pupil, Maudie—Maudie, my father calls her. She has heard the carriage."

A fresh-faced girl in a white frock, with smiling, bright eyes and short hair flying, came running down the steps to meet them.

"Maudie, honey, this is Miss Almee."

"Let me look at her," the girl said, drawing Irma into the stream of light and looking at her with wide-open eyes.

"I think—yes, I think I shall like her. I don't think I shall be tempted to play any tricks on her."

"I hope not, Maudie," her mother said, deprecatingly. "Almee, dear, my girl has a good heart, but the very imp of mischief possesses her sometimes. You'll have to forbear—"

"Now, mother, don't be putting up any warning signboards against me. The truth is, Miss Almee, I haven't had a teacher I could care a rotten hickory nut for. Your predecessor, Miss Midgens, told folks I was awful. 'Cause why, I couldn't help showing her I saw through her. Why, she was forty, and she wore baby-walt dresses and short sleeves (with her skinny little arms), and she giggled and told fibs, and because my brother Bert wouldn't succumb to her charms she took her spite on me."

"Oh, Maudie!"

"Well, mother, I only want to sort of put myself in a right light to Miss Almee beforehand. I know Belle is sure to give her a full list of my transgressions, and I want her to know why I couldn't respect Miss Midgens. If I hadn't caught her fibbing, though, and— But we'll let her pass. Miss Almee, I'm not so bad. Ask my tutor, Mr. Anderson, and he wouldn't tell a fib any more than George Washington. This is my dog, Gitup. He ain't a beauty, but handsome is as handsome does. This is my cat Napoleon—Nap for short. Ain't he a monster? fifteen pounds without his tail. Mark, my cousin, cut it off to that stub. Mark is your pupil, too. They'll tell you he's so good, but you look out. He was just to cut off a little bit of Nap's tail because he had fits, and Marm Delphy said that was good for fits, but what must he do but whack off the whole caudal appendage—the mean thing. And make out the hatchet slipped. Won't you go in the parlor. Miss Almee? There's nobody there but home folks. And John is there—my brother, Doctor John—the best fellow—"

"No, Mad," her mother said, as Irma shrunk back from that lighted room full of gay voices and bright dresses, and fair faces. "Almee will go to her room and have her tea there. She will come down after awhile if she feels like it; but I dare say she had rather rest. Almee, I have given you a little came in."

The tea was hot and nice; the crisp biscuit, the plum preserves and sliced tongue, made a perfect little refreshment. Irma ate with relish. On the tray lay a bouquet of violets.

"Maudie sent them," said the little maid, "and she says may she come up presently and see you?"

"Tell her yes," Irma said. She had no wish to be alone with her thoughts that night.

She had just sent away the tray when Maudie came. She had a spray of freshly cut tea-roses.

"For you to wear to-night," she said; "you are to appear in the drawing-room by command of her highness, Isabel Fontenoy, ruler supreme at Live Oaks. They are needing you in there badly right now."

"I do not think they are," Irma answered. "It did not look as though there was any need of a black shadow like me in that pretty lighted room as I passed."

But it is dull there as a church. Cousin Fannie is in the dumps because there is nobody to flirt with; John, poor fellow, is trying to amuse her, but she is engaged to John, you know, and there is no fun in being sweet for him. Belle is smiling on her rich beau, Judge Howard, and making poor Mr. Warren—our teacher, who worships her—supremely miserable. Mr. Warren is enough sight more of a man than the old judge. He wears a scratch, and once, when I trod on his corns, he punched my head, and said something not in the prayer-book. Then he gave me a doll to smooth matters over. A doll! when I never did care for the sawdust things in my doll-days. He's a nice sort of man, I reckon, but he's as pompous as a turkey-cobbler. You ought to see 'Buddie' take him off."

"Your brother John?"

"Goodness, no. John Wouldn't make fun of a mule. He never hurt anybody's feelings in his life. It was Bert I meant. He is full of mischief, but the girls all like him, though; and the children and niggers and old maids and widows like John."

"And Miss Fannie Gray likes him?"

"She ought to. Do you know what he did for her? She is a rich heiress now, but a few years ago she was poor and miserable and sickly—nearly dead with malaria. Her mother was my father's second cousin. She wrote to him after her husband died, and said they were starving; that she was bed-ridden, and the little girl a hopeless invalid. My father was about to send her some money, when John read the letter, and said he would go and attend to it himself. He went and found them in a low, half-overflowed part of New Orleans. He attended the mother until she died, and then he brought Fannie away with him. Such a puny, scrawny, little cross-eyed mite as she was, they say. She was twelve years old, and she didn't look nine. He took her to his home—he has a lovely old Gothic cottage on the edge of the town, and doctored her there, and cut her eyes till they ain't a bit crossed, they are the prettiest thing about her. He gave her a pony and made her ride every day. He taught her himself, until she knew enough to be sent off to school. Then he wrote to her father's sister about her—a rich, queer old maid. He took Fannie to see her one vacation. The old lady was pleased, and she has adopted Fanny, and made her will, and given her ever so much money. But while she was poor, John loved her, and she had promised to marry him. But I can't help thinking—

"What?"

"Nothing. Belle says I think a great deal more than I have any business to, and talk more than I think. But there's the clock striking eight, and you haven't said you'd go down and brighten up things. Ma'm'selle Aimee."

"And this, with her sweet singing. The Loriel will do."

"How do you know I sing at all?"

"Oh, by that swell in your neck when you talk, and your voice is rich and throaty. But you must change your dress. I remember Belle's command was, 'Tell Miss Brazeale, please, to change her dress and come down among us. I want to see you with your hair dressed, and these roses at your throat. Won't you let me fix you? I am really good at fixing folks, though Belle says I never was decent in my life. Can I help you take out your dresses?'"

"They are not many to trouble over," Irma said. She felt reluctant to lift the lid of that little trunk and handle the neatly arranged clothes inside. She was willing to leave the task to Maddy.

"This black lawn with all the delicate little ruffles will be nice for you to wear to-night. There is such lovely lace at the throat and wrists, and it looks perfectly fresh. Have you ever worn it?"

"No," Irma said, coloring, and feeling deeply averse to wearing Aimee Brazeale's pretty dress. But had she not clothed herself in the dead girl's name and identity?

more sumptuous picture; a regal woman with a complexion of snow and roses, whose fingers were busy netting some cloud-like fabric. Occasionally she smiled in a half-condescending way, and murmured a response to the pompous-looking man who was exerting himself to interest her. "This," thought Irma, "must be 'her Highness,' as Maddy calls her, Miss Belle Fontenoy, of whom her step-mother says: 'She is called the handsomest woman in the state.'"

Her Highness came across the room at a sign from Mrs. Fontenoy, and was presented to Irma. She gave the new governess a little cool touch of the hand, said a few pleasant words as she looked down at her, and glided back to her seat by Judge Howard. She had overawed Irma. The girl's lonely, independent life among high ideals gleaned from books had given her a pride of her own.

An intent look made Irma turn her head and meet a pair of keen blue eyes that were studying her profile. Bert Fontenoy was standing behind the piano, turning music for a showy girl, with a bouquet of striped lilies on the bosom of her pink dress.

"It is Florence Bellamy," said Maddy, in a loud whisper. "She lives near us, and comes over with her little brother, and Bert takes her home. She is Bert's latest and most serious flirt."

He heard her, and frowned, but the next instant he smiled, with a gleam of white teeth under his brown moustache. He left the piano and came over to the corner where Irma sat with Maddy and Mrs. Fontenoy; Dr. John having been summoned to the side of Miss Gray by an imperative beckon of her little hand.

"Maddy, you are too bad," Bert said, leaning on the back of his sister's chair, and pulling her plaits until she jumped. "You have been giving me a dreadful character. I feel sure. After it, I feel ashamed to ask Miss Brazeale's acquaintance."

Irma looked up at the laughing eyes, and brightened more than she had done any time this evening. He was so joyous-looking! She felt drawn to him, as a plant which has grown in a cellar is drawn by a gleam of sun. As for him, he had just said to Florence Bellamy:

"I never saw so strange a face as that girl's! Such shy, proud eyes like a young deer!"

"What a nice time you will have flirting with her!" Florence said, with a laughing sneer.

But Bert Fontenoy looked grave. "I shall not flirt with her at all," he said. "She is not a woman to invite flirtation. Most women expect you to amuse them, and they seem to find no amusement so spicy as being made get herself. But Miss Bellamy was switching them while she played, and there was a veiled curl on her full lips. Bert begged Irma to play.

"Or sing rather," he said, "we have been hungering for a song to-night. Miss Gray would only trill little fragments of songs—she has not unpacked her music. Will you come?"

He held out his hand to her and looked at her with persuasive eyes. She let him lead her to the piano. But what should she sing? How did he know she could sing? Besides her mother, the negroes and a few ignorant cattle-hunters had been her only audience. These had listened, open-mouthed, while she sang. She knew she loved to sing. She knew there were songs that thrilled her own soul when she sang them. She had learned them from her mother. They might be old and hackneyed; she did not know. How could she venture to sing them here before these people? But everything seemed strange and unreal now. She seemed herself a bubble on the tide of fate.

She sat down and sang a little song that had been wont to move her ignorant audience on the bayou. Even Vanhorn's earthly nature had been stirred by it.

A little song of yearning, love and passionate regret.

Her voice, that holds attention and reaches the heart. It was a contralto of great purity and magnetism.

As she sang the last note she raised her eyes and met John Fontenoy's look. It was full of deep interest, of subtle appreciation of the music and the feeling of the song. But it was Bert's whispered praise as he bent over her that brought a flush to her cheek.

"Will Miss Brazeale please play something that will give us an idea of her method?"

It was Col. Fontenoy's formal voice. She looked up and saw his gaunt, spare frame, his cold, grey eyes and prim, iron-grey side whiskers. She inwardly trembled on meeting that scrutinizing look. She half-murmured a request to be excused, but, as she did so, Miss Gray's sweet voice, with its vibrating chord of sarcasm, reached her ear:

"Now, Maddy, you can hear what depths you are expected to explore. Miss Midgens will be nowhere."

"I am expected to show my capability and prove I am worthy of my hire," thought Irma, and her hesitation disappeared, her mouth took a proud curve, and turning to the pile of music before her she selected a difficult test piece and played it through with brilliance.

But her thoughts were not upon what she was doing. The black notes on the music sheet danced weirdly before her. The play of the white keys brought a rush of images and emotions—the pale mother who had taught her to play, her bayou life, her marriage, her murderous act, her flight, the dying Aimee—all came up as her fingers mechanically wrought out the music before her. She finished the last bar—a fine climax of harmony. She rose, white as the flowers on her breast, and bent her head—a slight haughty movement—murmured "Good-night," and abruptly left the room.

Bert looked after her bewildered.

"Have I had any of us offended her?" he said.

"The new music-ma'am puts on airs," Miss Gray said with a toss of her fan of pink curlew feathers.

"She is nervous, coming among strangers, poor girl. We ought not to have asked her to play to-night," said John Fontenoy. "Playing is her business. I admit; but it is not her business to play at every idle demand."

"She holds herself rather proudly for a governess," said Florence Bellamy.

"Aimee Brazeale has a right to be proud," retorted Mrs. Fontenoy with some asperity. "She is as good as any of us. The best blood of the South is in her veins, and she has been well brought up."

"Her manners are quite unformed," said Belle, threading her needle with blue-zephyr.

"Ye-es," Mrs. Fontenoy admitted. "She is not like her mother. Poor Aimee Roublen was the gentlest and most lady-like girl I ever knew."

"But did she not take a crazy spell once in her life, and do a very wild thing? I have heard—" Mrs. Fontenoy gave the heiress a look of sharp rebuke.

"It was a temporary brain trouble, due to disease," she said.

"I hope nobody will allude to it before this girl," said Dr. John.

"No, for she might take it into her head to imitate the maternal example. She has a strange look in her eyes anyhow, and I shouldn't wonder—"

She broke off her sentence as she met John's deprecating look. She answered it with her defiant, laughing, spoiled-like glance.

"She has a strange look in her eyes," said Bert, "but it is a beautiful look—"

bright, happy cheerfulness of disposition which only complete health can insure.

A woman with a bright eye, clear complexion, mellow color in the cheeks and buoyant elastic and manner has a natural attractiveness that no artificial agency can counterfeit.

A woman who is afflicted with the mortifying misfortune of a dull, sallow, pimply complexion or that listless movement and attitude which provokes only disgust and revulsion in the opposite sex, ought to avail herself of the purifying, invigorating power of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which makes a strong, healthy stomach and digestive organism; purifies the blood and imparts a natural stimulus to the excretory functions; insures healthy, clear skin, bright eyes and the animated manner and bearing of perfect health.

A lady living in West Virginia, Miss Anna Callow, of Kyger, Roane Co., writes: "It is with pleasure I write you after using a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I think them valuable medicines for female troubles and weaknesses. I could hardly go about my work I had such inward weakness and constant misery in the night. It worried me so that I would give out in walking a short distance. I had a bad cough and my lungs hurt me all the time. I got very thin, my complexion was bad, and my eyes would get so heavy in the evening they seemed stiff in the lids. I could hardly move them. Many persons were alarmed about me. I looked so bad and had such a cough; they were afraid I would go into consumption. I felt so badly every day that I had no life about me. I used only five bottles in all. I shall ever speak in praise of your grand medicines. They are blessings to suffering females."

Another good thing to have in the house is a vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure biliousness and constipation and never gripe.

The investigations which have been made justify the statement that each infectious disease is due to a specific—i. e., distinct—micro organism. There are, however, certain infectious diseases which physicians formerly supposed to be distinct, and to which specific names are given which are now known to be due to one and the same infectious agent or germ. Thus puerperal fever and erysipelas are now recognized as being caused by the same germ, the germ which is the usual cause of pneumonia is also the cause of a considerable proportion of the cases of cerebro spinal meningitis, etc.—Surgeon General George M. ## THE GENTLE THACKERAY.

It Was a Sad Christmas Eve When His Bright Light Went Out.

"I have known Thackeray 18 years, and I don't know him yet," said Douglas Jerrold. There was a reserve in the manner of the great satirist and humorist which prevented his friends from being near to him, and yet when the humor suited him he would open his heart as though he had never known the feeling of reticence. He cared little for display and attention, and when a banquet was tendered him on his departure for America he said he wished it were over, as such things always set him trembling.

"Besides," said he, "I'll have to make a speech, and what am I to say? I'll see if I can hammer out something. I am afraid it will be stammering by and by."

At the time "Vanity Fair" was published, Charles Dickens was producing in monthly form the story of "Dombey and Son." Thackeray read with eager delight each number as it came from the press. Where Dickens described the death of little Paul with a depth of pathos which produced a vibratory emotion in the hearts of all who read it, Thackeray seemed electrified at the thought that there was a man living who could exercise so complete a control over him. Putting the copy of "Dombey and Son" in his pocket, he hurried down to Mr. Punch's office and, dashing it down on the table with startling vehemence, exclaimed: "There's no writing against such power as this—one has no chance. Read that chapter describing Paul's death. It is stupendous!"

Thackeray was found dead in bed on the eve of Christmas, 1863. He had laid his "weary pen" aside and sunk into his last deep sleep after months and years of not clothed herself in the dead girl's name and identity?

"The dress fitted her wonderfully well. When she had fastened the roses below Irma's throat with a little pearl pin she had found in the trunk, Maddie said to her:

"Now look in the glass and see what you look of yourself."

"I would rather have you," Irma said.

Maddie stood back, and surveyed her with intent eyes.

"You look like nobody I ever saw; Bert will like your looks, but Belle won't. She likes people cut out by a pattern of her own. Shall we go down?"

Irma was trembling. To go down among them all, and be introduced as the girl she had seen confined only last night—to be received with kindness due to Almee Brazzale—it was a trying ordeal. But she must pass through it some time, as well to-night as to-morrow. But when she stood in the door with the light pouring over her slender figure, and all eyes upon her, her head averted, Mrs. Fontenoy came to her side, and took her hand.

"This, my dears, is the new member of our household, Almee Brazzale, the daughter of my dearest friend."

On hearing that name, and feeling, "It is now too late ever to undeceive them," a rush of emotion overpowered Irma, and involuntarily she put out her hand and turned deathly pale. Mrs. Fontenoy did not notice it, but some one else did. A full strong figure came quietly to her side, a strong, shaggy head was bent over her, and Dr. John's large, soft hand drew her trembling one through his arm.

"We are glad to see Miss Brazzale. She is tired, I know. We will give her that seat in the corner before we bore her with special introductions."

The low, deep corner seat was in the shadow, and Irma sank into it with a grateful look at her companion. He was not handsome, but what a look of quiet, strong kindness. It calmed Irma, and when he nodded toward a group near her, and said: "We are trying to become acquainted with some wild flowers I found in my ride to-day, and making a failure. We have forgotten our smattering of botany. Can you help us?" she smiled, and said: "Perhaps; I know most of our wild flowers," and took the spike of purple flowers and cluster of pale pink bells, which a fairy hand, sparkling with rings, held out to her.

"This is Miss Gray, my cousin," Dr. John said.

The owner of the little hand looked, and smiled a little superciliously.

"So," thought Irma, "this is the heiress, the ex-waif. This the fiancée of this big, intellectual man? How strange!"

She did not know that it is just such dainty, helpless creatures who fascinate men of John Fontenoy's strong grave type. Pretty as a French doll—as Fannie Gray, a little gold-ringed head, lying back among the crimson velvet dimples of the big chair, into which she had thrown her petite, blue-clothed figure; a slightly tip-tilted nose, ripe red lips, that could smile and pout in the same minute; tiny ears, sparkling with diamond drops, and pretty arms, round and bracelet-bound—this was John Fontenoy's future wife.

Her dainty prettiness and bright jewels pleased Irma, who had a passion for beauty; but her eyes turned to a amusement so spicy as being made love to. I simply do what they like and invite."

It was true. He was so good-looking all women coveted his attentions. He had the credit of being a lady-killer; but, as he said of himself, he had never made love with any sincerity, and had never been very wildly worshipped. He broke no hearts, and his own had never been scarred.

His present relations to Florence Bellamy, however, amounted almost to an entanglement—thanks to the manoeuvring of his mother and the young lady's persistent passion.

Leaning on the back of Maddie's chair, he said some bright graceful

AN ATTRACTIVE COOK.

A Style of Dress That Will Add Reliah to Any Dish.

To the Woman's Home Companion Sallie Joy White contributes a series of papers on "Cookery For Girls," advising the would-be cook to put on this neat and dainty costume: "Wear big aprons—regular pinafores that button in the back and have long sleeves, full bishop sleeves that will go on over any dress, and that are held around the wrists by elastic cord that may be slipped out when the apron is laundered. This pinafore is usually made of white or some pretty print, light colored, because it looks fresher and is just as easy to launder as a dark one. This cooking apron should be worn for no other purpose. You can see for yourself how much nicer it is to come to your work of preparing delicate dishes with an apron which you have not worn while sweeping or doing any other work that would mean getting dust particles in it, even with great care. With the apron is worn a pretty little cap made from muslin or from a pocket handkerchief. This keeps the flying particles of dust from settling in the hair, and it also keeps the hair in place. Then pinned to one side is a small hand towel, and to the other a holder on a long tape."

"You know how often the fingers need wiping while you are doing even the simplest bit of cookery. If you have to step to the towel rack every time, you take many unnecessary steps. Then you know what a habit unattached holders have of getting mislaid, slipping out of sight just when they are needed. Sometimes you can't stop to hunt them up, and then you make shift with anything and perhaps burn your fingers. Well, if you have the towel and holder fastened to the belt of your apron, you don't have to cross the kitchen to use one, and the other can't get away from you."

"Let me tell you something, girls—this dress is a very becoming one, and you needn't be afraid to let any one see you in the cooking cap and apron. My word for it, any dish you may cook will be relished when you wear this sort of costume in its preparation, for in itself it suggests neatness, daintiness and all the rest that goes to make dishes tempting and appetizing."

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN AILMENTS THAT ARE CONTAGIOUS AND INFECTIOUS.

The terms contagious and infectious are not synonymous. A disease is contagious when it is transmitted from the sick to the well by personal communication or contact, more or less intimate, and all contagious diseases are infectious—i. e., they are due to the introduction into the body of a susceptible individual of a living germ. But all infectious diseases are not contagious. Thus smallpox, scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria, influenza, etc., are infectious diseases which are contagious, while malarial fevers, typhoid fever, yellow fever, cholera, pneumonia, peritonitis, etc., are infectious diseases which are not contagious—at least they are only contagious under very exceptional circumstances, and those in close communication with the sick as nurses, etc., do not contract these diseases as a result of such close association or contact.

The generalization that all infectious diseases are due to the introduction into the bodies of susceptible individuals of living germs capable of reproduction is based upon exact knowledge, gained chiefly during the past 20 years, as regards the specifiable number of the diseases of this class. In some infectious diseases, however, no such positive demonstration has yet been made.

THE DOCTOR'S MISTAKE, WHICH WAS CORRECTED BY THE MARRIED MAN.

The family physician guffed meditatively at his cigar for a few minutes before coming down to business.

"I have been to see your wife, as you requested," he said at last, "and I asked you to come in so that I could tell you what should be done. She's in a pretty bad way."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. No regular sickness, you know, but generally run down and in bad shape. With rest and care she'll come out all right, but you'll have to look after her pretty closely."

"I beg your pardon?"

"I say you'll have to look after her pretty closely. You'll have to appoint yourself sort of general overseer or supervisor of everything pertaining to her welfare for a time and be very strict with her too. In the first place, tell her she must."

"Doctor, are you acquainted with my wife?" interrupted the husband.

"Not intimately at all," replied the astonished physician. "I've been called upon to treat her once or twice, as you know, but that is all."

"Possibly that may be urged as an excuse," said the husband, "but it's not a particularly good one. There are women with whom you are quite well acquainted, are there not?"

"Certainly."

"Married women?"

"Many of them."

"And still you advise me to tell my wife that she must do something or other?"

The physician looked at the husband, and the husband looked at the physician.

"My dear sir," said the physician at last, "it flatters some men to talk to them that way, but I see you are a man of judgment and sense who prefers the truth to all else. Of course what I mean is that you ought to suggest to your wife that, if it is in accord with her judgment, possibly it might be a good thing to follow the advice that I will now give you. Naturally, being married, I know as well as you that 'must' is a word that ought to be eliminated from the English language or at the most confined to the intercourse of parents with children."—Chicago Post.

What Does it Mean?

An interesting phenomenon was visible on Thursday afternoon. Two sun dogs made their appearance in the west between four and five p.m., and to add to the picturesqueness of the scene an abbreviated rainbow appeared in the heavens the reverse way of the sun. The part visible was no doubt a reflex from the original rainbow which was under a cloud and invisible. The funny part, however, is that the shadow should be stronger than the substance. The "oldest inhabitant" says this is a sure indication of unsettled weather.

Who's the Best Man.

E. H. Sills, reeve of North Fredericksburgh, and Robert Perry, last year's assessor of the township, met by chance at the Brisco House on Saturday evening last. Bad blood has existed between the two since the last municipal election, and from hot words they came to blows. The fight was a hot one while it lasted and after the combatants had been separated the services of a doctor had to be secured to dress the wounds of one of the contestants. As Mr. Sills is a high county constable the affair has occasioned much comment, and it is hard to say what may grow out of it.

A Free Fight.

Last week the Deseronto hockey club journeyed to Picton to play the last match of the Corby series with the team of that town. The match resulted in a draw, each side scoring three goals. The last goal claimed by Picton the captain of the Deseronto team would not allow, whereupon a member of the Picton team struck him and a free fight ensued. The spectators took a hand in the melee and hockey sticks, boots, fists, etc. were pressed into requisition. Nobody was killed, but this was not the fault of the combatants. An eye-witness says it resembled a Donnybrook fair in miniature, and the next match between those two teams should draw a big gate if properly advertised.

Death of Miss Wilson.

Miss Mary Wilson passed away at her home in Selby on Friday of last week after an illness of three months duration. Deceased has been affected with heart trouble and her death was not unexpected. She was 55 years of age and highly esteemed for her many estimable qualities. Deceased acted as housekeeper for her brothers, John and Dan, who reside on the homestead, for a good number of years. She was a member of the Anglican church and the funeral on Sunday took place from St. John's church, Selby, to the Eastern cemetery at Napanee. The Rev. W. G. Swayne officiated. Miss Wilson was a sister of Mrs. Schryver, who conducts a grocery store on Dundas street, Napanee.

Archbishop Cleary is Dead.

Archbishop Cleary, of Kingston, passed peacefully away on Thursday at 1:20 o'clock p.m. Deceased was born in Duncarven, Ireland, on Sept. 18th, 1828. He was a man of high scholarly attainments and the Catholic church, of which he was the respected head in this district, loses an active and aggressive champion. The venerable prelate was made bishop of Kingston in September, 1880. He did much to advance the welfare of his church in this diocese and his death will be sincerely mourned by his faithful children throughout the country.

"Where is Her Wandering Boy?"

Last week Chief Adams ran in a burly tramp who was making himself obnoxious by begging on the street. When the Chief landed his man at the lock-up he showed fight and quite a lively tussle ensued before his trampship was got under lock and key. The fellow appeared before the P.M. on Friday. He gave his name as John Mach. The Magistrate remanded him to gaol for eight days to allow of his record being looked up. He is no doubt a tough customer, as after lying industriously to the Chief for several days as to his place of residence he has at last decided to tell nothing of his past. He is now the man of no name from nowhere. If he told where his home is located he is afraid his poor white-haired mother would ascertain his condition and grieve.

OBITUARY.

NANCY ANN VANALSTINE.

At Brighton on Friday the 11th inst. the spirit of Nancy Ann Vanalstine passed over to her reward at the ripe age of 84 years. Her first husband being the late Michael McCabe son of the late Peter McCabe and brother of the late Elias and Serenias McCabe and Mrs. Edward Baird, of Little Creek. They were of U. E. Loyalist stock and there are several of their descendants still residing in the old neighborhood of Hay Bay. She was the mother of nine children five of whom besides her husband preceeded her to the grave some eighteen years ago. Those who are left to mourn the loss of a mother are, Eli, of Macdonald, Mrs. John Hudson, Deseronto Road, Leonard, and Edgerton, of Napanee. Deceased was the sister of Richard Vanalstine, of Switzerland, and Mrs. Secord Vanalstine, mother of Irvine, John, Charles, and Messrs. Hugh Duncan and James Moore. And was married to Wm. Lawson, of Brighton, in May of 1882 where she lived until her death. The remains were brought to the residence of her son-in-law, John Hudson, Deseronto Road, from whence the funeral took place on Sunday the 13th. Albert, Irvine, John, Marshall and Frank Hudson and H. B. McCabe, Napanee.—Com.

A BELATED ACCOUNT.

Some few weeks ago quite an animated discussion took place at the town council in reference to the fees charged by the Police Magistrate for convictions under the Vagrancy Act. For a number of years the Magistrate has assessed the town $2.25 per each commitment, and things went along quietly until Coun. Ruttan, a new man at the council, appeared upon the scene this year and questioned the legality of the Magistrate's actions. Coun. Ruttan

DR. MEACHAM ON SQUANDERING

Some Plain Facts and Figures From a Farmer's Stand-point.

EDITOR OF THE EXPRESS.—I see from the published report of Dr. Meacham's address in the Napanee Town Hall last week that he attempted some vindication of himself in regard to certain criticisms, in regard to his facts and figures in his speech last summer, made by myself in your columns at that time. I do not see, however, that he has made matters any fairer or plainer than before.

What I complained of then and feel there is still reason to complain of is that facts and figures were so presented at that time, and again now during this campaign as to deliberately mislead the people. Figures are given that may suit the purpose and facts are withheld that may suit the purpose, and that purpose is to prejudice the minds of the people against the present Ontario Government. It has long been deemed a contemptible thing to attempt to build up one's self by tearing down the reputation of another. That course is just now being deliberately pursued by the Conservative Candidates in both Lennox & Addington. They are both giving the figures in regard to the surplus left by the Sandfield Macdonald Government and then asserting it has been "squandered" because there is not as much money in the Provincial treasury now. They are constantly asking the electors to condemn the Government because, on the whole, the yearly expenditures have been greater than the yearly receipts during the last twenty-four years. At the same time they carefully avoid explaining how that money has been "squandered." They keep back a part of the truth all the time, so as to better serve their party purposes.

A FARMER'S CASE.

Has not the Province received the money's worth for what has been "squandered"? That is the important question. Supposing a farmer comes into possession of 200 acres of good land, but unimproved and without buildings, and at the same time has $2,000 of money in his possession. At the same time he has an income of $400 a year from other sources. At the end of five years he has expended that surplus money and sold off the timber from 20 acres of his farm, and he has not the money to show for that either. Is that an evidence the man has been "squandering" his property? That depends on just how he has paid his money out. If he has gone on and erected good buildings, built up good fences, put down drains, opened up a good road and done necessary work, all at a reasonable expense, it would be very evident that though he may have less surplus money than before yet he has now his money's worth in another and more profitable form, and is therefore the richer and not the poorer because he has expended that surplus.

HOW THE MONEY WAS SPENT.

The position of the Ontario Government in regard to that surplus is very much the same. The Province needed a number of new and expensive public buildings. These have been erected and paid for. The Province needed a number of new railways, to open up the country to settlers and make valuable much of the public lands not otherwise valuable at all. These railways have been aided out of the public treasury to the extent of millions. Colonization roads were needed to open up new sections to pioneer settlers, just as the early settlers in our old counties once needed aid. These roads have been built, and repaired and paid for. Nearly three million dollars have been spent in that way. The schools of the Province needed public aid to make them as efficient as possible, so that every family in the county might enjoy the full advantages. The Government has aided these and paid out nearly fifteen millions in that way. The poor and sick of our land needed such help as those thus unfortunate ought to receive in any christian country. Our Government has expended nearly three million dollars in erecting and aiding hospitals and similar institutions. Years ago a number of the cities, towns and townships had got pretty heavily in debt in helping railways, opening roads and other improvements they deemed necessary, and they were compelled to pay high interests on their debts. The Government had a surplus drawing but a low interest and it was thought better to aid the people out of their own money. At the same time those municipalities not thus in debt also received their fair and just share. The Government, first and last, paid out over three million dollars in these municipal distributions. to too drastic, it was referred back to the committee to re-draft. At the meeting of the Council on Monday night the proposed "Governor of the Beautiful" was trotted out again. The council went into committee of the whole on the first reading of the by-law, and it was decided to take it up clause by clause. The first clause was read, but like grandpapa's old clock, the council stopped there. This clause calls upon the owner or occupant of any lot or dwelling in Nananee to remove from the sidewalks fronting or abutting the same, all snow, ice, or dirt, before the hour of —. Some wanted to make it 12 o'clock noon, others 6 p. m., and a majority objected to the ice clause. The by-law was finally again referred back to the committee, and it may be crystallized into law about the middle of next July, when the ratepayers will need no urging to clear the ice from in front of their residences.

A Hot Game.

The Tigers and the Deseronto High School hockey clubs played an interesting match at the Pollard and Wilson rink on Saturday night. In the first half the Deseronto boys had the best of the game and succeeded in scoring two goals. In the second half the Tigers buckled down to business and kept the visitors on the defensive throughout. Despite their utmost endeavors the Tigers only succeeded in scoring one goal, and the game stood two to one in favor of the visitors at the finish. In the first half Mr. Jamieson, of Deseronto, acted as referee and showed a supreme indifference to offside plays, and this militated against the Tigers. In the second half Mr. Woodcock, of Deseronto, took his place and his decisions gave general satisfaction. The game throughout was scrappy and interesting, and both teams were pretty evenly matched. The following players composed the Tigers: goal, McCoy; point, Prayn; cover point, Briggs; forwards, Lafferty, Embury, Russell, Burrows. The Deseronto team were: goal, Stuart; point, Prickett; cover point, Cole; forwards, Carter, O'Rourke, Hynes, McMaster.

On the same evening the Monarchs, of Nananee, a junior team, defeated the juniors of Deseronto, by a score of 7 to 3 in a game on Diamond's rink. The Nananee team were: Lane, goal; Pringle, point; Scott, cover point; forwards, Russell, Trimble, Richardson, Hetlor.

A Brilliant Affair.

A few social spirits of Yarker, Colebrook, Newburgh, Tweed and Camden East have made the past winter unusually pleasant by forming themselves into a pedro club, the ladies meeting in the afternoon once a week at the home of one of the members, where they thoroughly enjoyed themselves with cards and conversation. Frequently they gave an evening party to which came the gentlemen of the club, who could not attend the afternoon events. At these parties was added to the other amusements dancing and a supper. As Lent approached these parties have become more frequent, and in some cases have partaken of the character of a ball of more than usual brilliancy, notably one given by Mrs. R. Bicknell, Camden East. The wind-up party of the season for the club was given by Mrs. C. H. Finkle, Newburgh, on Friday evening, 18th inst., and was enjoyed by forty people. It was given in Finkle's hall, Newburgh, which was most beautifully decorated for the occasion. It is admitted by all who were privileged to attend that in grandeur and brilliancy it far surpassed any social event known in this section for many a day. Dressing rooms were arranged for the ladies and gentlemen and card and billiard tables were provided for those who wished to enjoy themselves after this fashion. Dinner was served at twelve o'clock on long tables brought ready laid into the hall from hidden recesses, and was of such a character as to add even to the already known reputation of Mrs. Finkle as a genial hostess and successful entertainer. Among those present were: Mrs. F. Wartman, Colebrook; Mrs. Tobey, Mr. and Mrs. W. Dollar, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Connolly, Miss Connolly, Mr. and Mrs. A. Benjamin, Yarker; Miss Ross, Kingston; Rev. and Mrs. Woodcock and Master Woodcock, Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. R. F. Bicknell, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bicknell, Mrs. H. McCarthy, Camden East; Mr. and Mrs. F. Drewry, Newburgh; Miss Baxter, Mrs. and Dr. Oldham, Yarker; Mr. and Mrs. Trickey, Kamloops, B. C.; Mr. and Mrs. I. McAuley, Newburgh; J. Haydon, Toronto; W. Taylor, Tweed; B. S. O'Loughlin, Dr. Rattan and Mr. Dawson, Yarker; William Smith, R. P. Lahey, Nananee.

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic and liver tonic. Gentle, reliable, sure.

claimed that the Police Magistrate had no right to collect fees from the town under the Criminal Code, nor under the town by-laws. The matter was finally referred to the town solicitor and to put it briefly that gentleman stated that while their was no authority calling upon the town to pay the magistrate any fees, it did call upon them to furnish that officer with a suitable office and a clerk.

It was pointed out by Mayor Jamieson that in the years mentioned below Police Magistrate Daly remitted to the town $35.50 and received in fees $85.50 as follows:

	Paid in	Received.
In 1895	$12.00	$21.50.
" 1896	10.50	33.24.
" 1897	13.75	15.75.

Or in other words Mr. Daly received $50 in excess of the money paid over by him to the town in the past three years. As the Police Magistrate furnishes his own office and only received in the neighborhood of $30 a year for doing the town's business the council woke up to the fact that they were straining at a gnat to swallow a camel and they dropped the matter like a hot potato. But when the town council dropped it Police Magistrate took the matter up. It was pointed out by the town solicitor in his report that in the town of Strathroy the magistrate is paid $50 per year in addition to the regular fees; in Trenton the magistrate receives a salary of $600 per annum; in Picton, Prescott and Gananoque they pay their magistrate a salary, while the town of Deseronto allows the magistrate $2.45 for each case. So much by way of introduction, now for the sequel.

At the regular meeting of the town council on Monday night the following petition was received and read:

Your petitioner, relying upon the intelligence and fairness of your honorable body, since being made acquainted by your solicitor of the universal treatment accorded to Police Magistrates in other towns under similar circumstances will not longer delay in complying with the law to furnish your petitioner with such accommodations as are set forth in the amended municipal law, also in the act known as the Police Magistrates Act, and your petitioner humbly prays that your honorable body will favorably consider his account hereto annexed for disbursements that he has been compelled to incur for the last eight years and order the same to be immediately settled and your petitioner as in duty bound will ever pray.

JAMES DALY,
Police Magistrate.

Feb. 21st 1895.

The account referred to amounts to $72.56, and is made up as follows:

For disbursements for expenses of office, rent, etc., for eight years and three months to date, commencing Nov. 2nd, 1889,—$509, made up as follows: Office rent per year, $36; Fuel per year, $20; Light, $6. Annual expenses $62.

This together with eight years and three months interest on furniture and fixtures bring it up to $702.56.

We do not know whether Mr. Daly is taking a quiet rise out of the town council, or not. The account will certainly not be paid, but the whole thing demonstrates the wisdom of letting well enough alone. Had the matter not been stirred up Mr. Daly would have gone on serving the town as heretofore, but anyone reading between the lines can perceive that it is a gentle intimation that the Police Magistrate will henceforth require the town to supply him with an office at an annual expenditure of $62 per year.

Edmund Long has been appointed assessor of Richmond Township.

Mrs. Somerville, an elderly lady, of Nananee Mills, fell and broke her arm on Saturday.

At a Kingston skating rink last week Miss Golaeson, aged 20, burst an artery and died.

Rev. Harris delivered a lecture in the Western church on Tuesday night which was well attended and much enjoyed.

townships in this county have now their share invited to-day and drawing interest ever since. Some others that paid off their debts which were a serious burden.

Who does not say that all these expenditures were in the interests of the People and of the Province? And yet these yearly sums thus paid out are now all added in to the yearly expenditures and so presented as to leave the impression the money was all "squandered"! Surely demagoguism has seldom reached a lower depth.

SOME ITEMS OF EXPENDITURE.

We are now being told over and over again, that while the Liberal Government has received within the last twenty-five years over eighty-three millions it has expended over eighty-six millions. The people are asked to turn the Government out for that "squandering." Here are some of the ways that money has gone.

Aiding the Schools ..... $14,885,186
Aiding Agriculture ..... 3,471,714
Public buildings and works ..... 9,355,098
Colonization roads ..... 2,868,007
Aiding railways ..... 6,609,413
Distribution to municipalities ..... 3,388,774
Aiding asylums and prisons ..... 15,432,075

Here over sixty millions is at once accounted for. Had the Government refused to thus aid the country the people would have to be taxed in some other form for the purpose. It is easy to see how a Government, and even a very extravagant one, could have thus laid by an enormous surplus and yet have made the people more heavily tax-burdened and the Province much worse off than now. What one of these items should the Government have withheld? And yet these are the very expenditures the Conservative candidates now want the Government condemned for!

Would they cut such off, and thus accumulate a surplus? They wish to convey that impression. But what do the sensible, property holding and tax paying people say?

WHAT HAS BEEN PROVIDED.

It may be as well here to mention some of the things that have been provided in the "squandering" of that surplus, but which our Conservative candidates now refrain to even make mention of.

Our new Provincial building at Toronto, costing in all near two millions. The old buildings were put up over fifty years ago and became unfit and unsafe. The Conservatives do not say the sums paid for this were extravagant.

New Lunatic Asylums, at Brockville, Mimico, Orillia and Hamilton and expensive additions to those at Rockwood money was "squandered" on these. The sums thus paid out amount to $3,600,000. On the institutes for the Blind, at Brantford and the Deaf and Dumb, at Belleville, nearly half a million have been expended, and no complaints of jobbery.

Large sums have been expended in enlarging and improving the Central Prison and in aiding the erection of poor houses in the counties. Had not this been done our municipal taxes would have been much higher.

The Rockwood Insane Asylum has cost over $100,000 which has been paid for. Sandfield Macdonald bargained for it before his government was defeated, but it was not paid for till since.

The Sandfield Government also purchased land and made arrangements to build and maintain an Agricultural College, but these expenses have all been met since.

The list might be much extended. Is it not singular, is it not misleading and unfair, that men like Dr. Meacham and Mr. James Reid should go on adding all these great items of expense in the yearly expenditures of the government and yet refrain from telling what value the country has got for the money expended? Is not the Province better off to-day with all these needed and valuable buildings, with all these aided railways, with all these public institutions and other improvements than it would be with more millions in the treasury and none of these improvements? Is this their evidence that "millions have been squandered?"

A communication from Police Magistrate Daly was received and referred to the Police Committee.

The Canadian Rubber Co. tendered for the supply of 500 ft. of hose.
Coun. Aylsworth entered.

A communication from Jas. Johnston & Co. addressed to the Tax Collector was read in reference to his personal taxes. It was referred to the town solicitor.

The Auditor's report was ordered to be placed in the hands of the Printing Committee for publication.

The chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee reported recommending payment of A. W. Grange & Bro's account, and laid before the council samples of hose from the different rubber companies. The agent of the Canadian Rubber Co. was present and was heard in reference to the merits of the hose.

The matter of purchasing 500 feet of hose was referred to a special meeting to be held next Monday night.

Rev. Sterne Tighe addressed the council in the interest of the Kingston General Hospital. He showed what great value the hospital was and the absolute need of its existence. He instanced the great success of the institution in dealing with diseases of all kinds, and especially with diphtheria, not one of the patients treated during the past year for this disease having succumbed. The expenditure of the hospital last year was $14,017.42. This year they had been visited by fire and had lost the Watkins' wing. He showed the precariousness of the sources of income and urged the council to make a grant. Last year Napanee had sent seventeen patients, and figuring at the average cost of keeping a patient, viz 62 cents per day, it cost $270.14, to keep those seventeen patients from Napanee.

On motion $50 was granted to the Kingston General Hospital.

A by-law re the removal of snow and ice was given its first reading.

The Poor & Sanitary Committee reported an expenditure from Feb. 5 to Feb. 21st of $24.56.

Appeals of Jno. Denholm and Jno. Wilson, re dog tax were referred to the Court of Revision.

On motion $40 was ordered to be placed in the hands of the Poor & Sanitary Committee.

The collector was ordered to continue the collection of the taxes until the 1st of May.

ACCOUNTS.

E. B. Perry, 18.50; EXPRESS, ref to Printing Com. $11.00.

The Treasurer was granted a voucher for $30.

Lennox took place at the court house on Tuesday at 11 a.m. Owing to the storm there were very few present and but little interest was evinced in the proceedings. Bowen E. Aylsworth, the Reform candidate, was nominated by Dr. R. A. Leonard and W. J. Black. Dr. W. W. Meacham was nominated by R. A. Fowler, and Allan Oiver. Mr. Aylsworth, appointed William Ryerson Gordanier, of Napanee, as his financial agent and Dr. Meacham appointed William Nelson Doler, of Napanee, as his financial agent. Mr. Aylsworth chose red as his color on the ballot, while Dr. Meacham's choice is blue. The election will be held on the 1st of March. The following are the polling places in Napanee: West Ward No. 1, W. C. Bowen's residence S. B. Mill street; West Ward No. 2, J. C. Clapp's shop, N. S. Dundas street; Centre Ward No. 1, Town Hall; Centre Ward No. 2, Alfred Rendell's residence, S. S. Thomas street; East Ward, James Perry's office, E. S. Dundas street.

The nominations for Addington took place at the town hall, Tamworth, on Tuesday. There was a large crowd in attendance and great interest was evinced in the proceedings. F. S. Wartman, Liberal, and James Reid, Conservative, were nominated, and then the boards were cleared for action. Speeches were delivered by the candidates, and by Geo. W. Dawson, H. M. Deroche, Q. C. J. W. Bell, M. P., and Alex. Karr. The latter speaker came out in his true colors and harangued the crowd in the interest of Jas. Reid. Messrs. Wartman, Deroche and Dawson delivered masterly addresses and had the audience with them throughout. Wartman's election is a foregone conclusion.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Dr. Meacham addressed a slimy attended meeting at the town hall here on Tuesday afternoon. The Mail's boasting has not inspired the Doctor with confidence as he appealed to the audience to elect him on the ground that a vigilant opposition was necessary.

The Tories are making desperate efforts to defeat "Joe" Haycock in Frontenac.

Two Liberals have been returned by acclamation.

The Beaver charges Premier Hardy with nepotism and says that his father is feeding at the public crib. Mr. Hardy's father has been resting peacefully in his grave for the past ten years, but it seems that even the dead are not exempt from the calumnies of the Tory press.

At the nomination meeting at Tamworth, Alex. Karr, who appeared for Jim Reid, got so warmed up that he took the liberty of shedding his coat and addressed the meeting in his shirt sleeves. If the festive Alex isn't careful he'll be contracting a bad attack of pneumonia.

Bowen E. Aylsworth addressed a meeting at Roblin on Monday night; notwithstanding the storm it was fairly well attended.

The meetings in the interest of Bowen E. Aylsworth held at Bath and Odessa on Saturday were largely attended and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Messrs. Elliot, Mills, and B. M. Britton, of Kingston, and the candidate delivered stirring addresses. Dr. Meacham was present at the Odessa meeting and delivered a short speech.

Geo. P. Graham, editor of the Brockville Recorder, and the Reform candidate in that constituency, was elected Grand Master of the A. O. U. W. by acclamation at the last meeting of the Grand Lodge.

A. S. Kimmerly will pay the highest prices for clean timothy and choice red clover seed, bring your samples, will pay $1 each for prime soon skins, Keewatin flour beats the world.
